National law firm Husch Blackwell is pleased to announce that Dan Wilson has joined the firm as a partner in the Washington, D.C. office and as a member of its Technology, Manufacturing & Transportation industry group.

Wilson has substantial experience representing a broad range of both U.S.-based and foreign companies in antidumping and countervailing duty proceedings before the U.S. Department of Commerce and the U.S. International Trade Commission. He has successfully represented foreign exporters and manufacturers in achieving significant reductions—or even outright elimination—of duty liability for clients in the home appliance, consumer products, and heavy industry sectors.

“Dan’s addition provides significant depth to our International Trade Remedies and Evasion & Circumvention capabilities—a team that has one of the most active practices in Washington, D.C. on antidumping and countervailing duties (AD/CVD) matters,” said Partner Cortney Morgan, the leader of the firm’s International Trade & Supply Chain practice group. “Dan will be a tremendous asset to our clients and we are pleased that he has joined our Husch Blackwell team.”

Wilson advises clients in high-stakes regulatory matters and represents them in enforcement proceedings before U.S. Customs and Border Protection. He has assisted clients in complying with the U.S. ban on the importation of goods produced in whole or in part from forced labor and has guided clients through investigations of alleged duty evasion under the Enforce and Protect Act. He has also advised clients on navigating duties imposed on steel and aluminum products pursuant to Section 232 of Trade Expansion Act of 1962 and on imports from China pursuant to Section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974.

“Husch Blackwell has deep experience at the International Trade Commission and a sense of the whole universe with respect to international trade issues,” Wilson said. “In addition, the firm is on the forefront of new and developing issues, including the Enforce and Protect Act and the Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act. I’m delighted to have an opportunity to continue my legal career at Husch Blackwell and work with this talented bench of attorneys.”
