OVERVIEW

A former paramedic, Ryan is used to making decisions and calmly managing crises – attributes that enhance his current work as a litigator.

When he was ready for a career change, Ryan knew he wanted a field where he could continue to help people. He realized that clients engaged in litigation often are stressed, out of their element and in need of guidance. By nature, Ryan is at the ready, advising clients on how to protect themselves and their businesses.

With a focus on corporate litigation, Ryan thrives in fast-paced environments and does not shy away from high-stakes decisions. Clients trust him as a true counselor and guide through an often tense, difficult process.

Ryan brings to his practice previous experience as a summer associate in Husch Blackwell's Dallas office for two years. He also served as an extern for the Hon. Amos Mazzant in the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Texas, Sherman Division.
