OVERVIEW

A litigator, Jason advocates for clients, moving them forward in alignment with their business goals.

Jason is a litigator assisting nationwide corporations, small businesses, municipalities and individuals across sectors on a broad range of complex matters. He has experience on large-scale research projects as well as writing and collaborating with legal teams to find unique client solutions. Jason has assisted legal defense teams with innovative strategies regarding:

- Trade secrets
- Intellectual property
- Software development
- Family law
- Mortgage priority
- First Amendment issues

Before joining the firm, Jason worked for six years as an investigative journalist, covering Wisconsin political and governmental news for various outlets, including the Associated Press and a USA Today newsroom. This background allows Jason to understand that clients' legal matters must be communicated – and solved – within the context of their real-world practicalities, budgets, timelines and goals.
