OVERVIEW

Luis assists creditors and debtors in bankruptcy and insolvency matters, bringing a financial professional's eye to every case he handles.

He has represented both creditors and debtors, with extensive experience advising financial services creditors who are navigating the bankruptcy process, from protecting their positions in a debtor's restructuring to pursuing recovery in liquidation.

Luis enjoys the legal research necessary in insolvency cases and values the opportunity to craft novel and practical solutions for clients. Known for his dedication and thorough approach, he is focused on providing immediate solutions while preventing future issues, digging into the financial details of a case to anticipate problems before they surface.

As a former accountant and auditor, Luis thrived on investigative work but was keenly aware that his role never included resolving any of the problems he uncovered. He chose to pursue a career as an attorney, where he could combine his passions for fact-finding, problem-solving, and creativity, and his accounting and auditing background continues to inform how he approaches the financial distress underlying every insolvency matter. He also served as a summer associate at Husch Blackwell, where he sharpened the research and advocacy skills he now applies to his bankruptcy practice.
